Green is the most exciting development in careers for a long time and one of the only vibrant and growing branches of economics, green careers, green jobs, and technology.

Green Economics is The Economics of Doing and sharing and supporting each other, and about environmental and social justice and one of the fastest growign branches of economics at the moment. It is provisioning for the needs of all people everywhere, nature, other species, the planet and its systems. It is regarded as the one ray of hope amidst the economics crisis, the cuts, the austerity budgets. Green Economics is the growth area and the subject this year of the Earth Summitt RIO+20 in Rio, Brazil in June 2012. African teams are discovering it as a serious contender to help with their future proof development, South American teams are working to implement it and in Europe it is a fast growing and popular alternative to mainstream economics, and China in a 5 year plan is implementing Green Economics. Don't miss this exciting wave of change-the first ever Green Economics Masters is now offered to you.

This course is designed to encourage and foster the skills needed for inter-disciplinary working amongst graduates and professionals drawn from a variety of backgrounds who are either employed in or seeking employment within the environmental sector and will particularly appeal to students who wish to follow a course of studies with a Green Economics specialism. It will be run in conjunction with and have professional accreditation from The Green Economics Institute.
